Presenter: Toni Capodanno

Across New Jersey, the leading educational organizations, along with the NJDOE, have identified the Connected Action Roadmap as a powerful process for strengthening teaching, leading and learning. In supporting this work, the NJDOE brought together teams of ELA and Math educators to implement the CAR process and unpack the K-12 ELA and Math standards. Come to this session to learn more about these K-5 ELA units and to explore practical classroom application of research-based instructional strategies. This session will demonstrate how to connect and enhance your current practices within the powerful CAR process, specifically Conversation #6 for professional learning communities - Designing the Learning Experience. Teams of educators are encouraged to attend this workshop to discover interactive strategies and resources that promote engagement, increase student learning and can be implemented in the classroom the next day! Participants will:

- design a comprehensive learning experience that is aligned to the ELA standards-based SLOs
- create and learn how to effectively use rubrics and self-assessment protocols to foster student responsibility for learning
- understand and apply student research based learning strategies as powerful tools to support the development of independent learners throughout ELA learning units
- learn and develop the tools to implement research-based instructional strategies and activities that are aligned to standards-based SLOs
- design and explain formative assessment which determine student progress and inform instructional decisions

This session would be an ideal in-district program to bring to your district.
