

Assemblywoman Pam Lampitt has represented New Jersey's 6th Legislative District since 2006, and has served as the Deputy Speaker of the Assembly since 2012. She currently serves as the Chairwoman of the Assembly Education Committee and the Vice-Chairwoman of the Assembly Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee.

Originally born in Natick, Massachusetts, Assemblywoman Lampitt has made her home in Cherry Hill, NJ. She received a degree in Culinary Arts and Management from Johnson & Wales University. Employed by the University of Pennsylvania for nearly 40 years, Assemblywoman Lampitt currently serves as the University's Director of Business and Hospitality Services

A longtime Cherry Hill resident, Assemblywoman Lampitt got her start in public service by serving on the Township's Zoning Board. Elected to the Township Council in 2003, she served from 2004-2006 in municipal government.

A constant advocate for students, Assemblywoman Lampitt helped author key reforms of the NJ STARS program, saving it from major funding cuts and potential elimination and ensuring the program would continue to offer the most opportunity to the widest number of students possible. She is the sponsor of legislation to combat child hunger, end lunch shaming and address meal debt practices in schools. She was also the author of major bill which streamlined the process and requirements for higher education transfer credits—ensuring New Jersey's college students have better access to quality, affordable higher education. Assemblywoman Lampitt has also been involved in efforts to raise awareness for and expand services for mental health care in our schools and suicide prevention for New Jersey's youth.

Assemblywoman Lampitt and her husband, Charles, have two children, Ilene and Andrew, and proud grandparents of Gavin and James.
